

WILSON EXPLAINS PLANS OF UNITED STATES AS TO THE MEXICAN SITUATION

READS HIS ADDRESS AT JOINT SESSION OF CONGRESS SHORTLY AFTER ONE THIS AFTERNOON.

URGES MONEY REFORM

Also Pays Tribute to the Farmers of the Nation and Urges Legislation in Their Behalf at the Present Regular Session.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 2.—President Wilson arrived at the capitol just before one o'clock today to read in person his first annual message to a joint session of congress. He went at once to Speaker Clark's room where he was met by a committee of the house and senate and escorted to the house chamber to the rostrum. Galleries packed with a brilliant company of officials and their families greeted the president, however, when the joint session finally got down to business. All present rose to their feet and a deafening roar of applause swept the chamber as Mr. Wilson took his place behind the desk and began at 1:05 o'clock.
The president read easily and clearly in his usual pleasing tone which carried his words to the door of the chamber.
Nothing had been in readiness early today for President Wilson to appear before a joint session of both houses of congress at 1:05 p. m. to read his first annual message.
The senate met at 11 a. m. under a plan to march to the house chamber just before one o'clock.
The house assembled this noon and then recessed until the hour for the reading. Hours before the time set for the president's appearance the corridors of the capitol were filled by delegates by applications for admission to the house galleries. Admission was by ticket. Each senator and representative received one ticket.
The beginning of the joint session and the reading of the message did not begin promptly at one o'clock as had been provided because of the failure of the senate to recess in time to get over to the house chambers. It was within one minute of one o'clock when the senate came over to the other side of the capitol. Meanwhile the president waited in Speaker Clark's office, chatting with the reception committee and a few congressmen.
The solemn quiet which attended the president's reading was broken by general applause when he read his views on the Mexican situation in the emphatic words, "There can be no certain prospect of peace in America until General Huerta has surrendered his usurped authority in Mexico."
As the president concluded his references to Mexico and announced that the United States would adhere to its "waiting policy" the applause was longer.
Another outburst of applause greeted the president's declaration that the Sherman anti-trust law should be strengthened. More applause greeted the declaration in favor of the direct nomination of presidential candidates. Nearly every sentence of his comment on that subject was punctuated by hand-clapping. Secretary Bryan in the diplomatic gallery, smiled broadly.
In another burst of applause the president finished reading his message. The joint session dissolved and the president returned to the white house.
Mrs. Wilson, with her daughters, Eleanor and Margaret, occupied places in the private gallery.
Secretary Tamm and all the members of the cabinet had places on the floor.
The President said:
Gentlemen of the Congress:
In pursuance of my constitutional duty to "give the Congress the state of the Union," I take the liberty of addressing you on several matters which ought, as it seems to me, particularly to engage the attention of your honorable body. I have endeavored to give you a full and complete account of the state of the Union and of the progress of the nation.
I shall ask your indulgence if I venture to depart in some degree from the usual custom of setting before you in formal review the many matters which have engaged the attention and called for the action of the several departments of the government or which look to them for early treatment in the future. I mean to say that I am long and will suffer in the abbreviation to which I should have to subject it. I shall submit to you the reports of the heads of the several departments, in which these subjects are set forth in careful detail and beg that they may receive the thoughtful attention of your committee and of all members of the congress who may have the leisure to study them. Their obvious importance in the conduct of the government makes comment and emphasis on my part unnecessary.
The country, I am thankful to say, is at peace. All the way along many happy manifestations, multiply about us of a growing cordiality and sense of community of interest among the nations, foreshadowing an age of settled peace and good will. More and more readily each nation recognizes its own interest in the welfare of the nations manifest their willingness to bind themselves by solemn treaty to the processes of peace, the processes of frankness and fair concession. So that the United States is now in the front of such negotiations. She will earnestly hope and confidently believe, give fresh proof of her sincere adherence to the cause of international friendship by making treaties of amity and commerce, awaiting renewal by the senate. In addition to these, it has been the privilege of the department of state to gain the assent in principle, of no less than 121 nations representing four-fifths of the population of the world, to the negotiation of treaties by which it shall be agreed that whenever difference of interest or of policy arises between nations, they shall be publicly analyzed, discussed, and reported upon by a tribunal chosen by the parties before either nation determines to resort to arms.
There is only one possible standard by which to determine controversies between the United States and other nations and that is compounded of these two elements: Our own

PLAN OF NEW HAVEN BEFORE GOVERNMENT

Chairman Howard Elliott Holds Conference With Attorney General McReynolds.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 2.—Howard Elliott, chairman of the board of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railway, had a conference with Attorney General McReynolds. Such plans for the voluntary reorganization of the New Haven as its directors have been able to make were laid before the attorney general. T. W. Gregory and several of the assistants who investigated the railway with a view to prosecuting it under the anti-trust act.
Unless the proposals made by Mr. Elliott are looked upon as sufficient to insure a reorganization meeting the approval of Attorney General McReynolds the negotiations probably will be abandoned and the department will act upon the recommendation of its investigators.
The department had no comment to make on Mr. Elliott's visit, but Mr. McReynolds announced weeks ago that he had no desire to rush into court to accomplish a reorganization of the system if its management could convince him that such an end could be brought about by voluntary action.

NEW CONSTITUTION TO BE CONSIDERED

Chief Topic Discussed at Second Day's Session of Woman's Suffrage Association.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 2.—Chief of interest in the second day's session of the convention of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association was in the discussion of a new constitution for the organization. The purpose of a change in the constitution, it was explained, was to place the association on a basis with a budget system. Money for carrying on the work of the association has been raised on a subscription plan. Reports of credentials, ways and means, church work, congressional and other committees took up the morning session. The committee which drew up the new constitution also was ready to report.
While there was some opposition to the proposed change, leaders declared that when its full meaning was explained much of the objection would disappear. The executive committee had approved the new constitution and the members of the constitution dealing with the method of raising the budget. That, it was felt, paved the way for removal of much opposition.

DISCLAIMS INTIMACY WITH DOCTOR KNABE

Attorney Defending Dr. William E. Craig Declares There Never Was Any Promise of Marriage.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Shelbyville, Ind., Dec. 2.—Dr. William E. Craig, accused of murdering Dr. Helen Knabe, was portrayed as an innocent man who was being unfairly prosecuted by the state in the opening statement of the defense made by Henry N. Spain today.
Mr. Spain denied that there was any greater intimacy than that of good friends between Dr. Craig and Dr. Knabe. He said there was never any promise of marriage or any talk of marriage between the two.
"Dr. Knabe was a manish woman, a fighter, but she was not successful," said Mr. Spain, "and she drew money from her friends frequently because she was unable to make a living at the practice of medicine and at the time of her death she was preparing herself for physical culture work."
He asserted that her cousin, Dr. Augustus Knabe, knew she was dependent because of her failure in life and had told a friend who would be produced as a witness, that she was afraid Dr. Knabe would commit suicide.
Second Clash.
Another clash between counsel marked the morning session of the trial of Dr. William E. Craig for the murder of Dr. Helen Knabe. Henry N. Spain, in making the opening statement of the defense, attacked the character of Harry C. Webster, a private detective, who worked up the case against Craig. Counsel for the state vigorously objected to the statement.
Judge Blair said that both sides had gone too far in the opening statements and instructed the jury to disregard anything that had been said respecting Webster's character.
The defense indicated that it would again strongly attack the state. At the afternoon session the introduction of witnesses for the state was begun.
Must Show Clearly.
Mr. Spain declared it was the duty of the state to point out clearly and beyond reasonable doubt how Craig had cut Dr. Knabe's throat. It had failed to do so in its opening statement, he said.
At great length the accused man's attorney described the surroundings of Dr. Knabe's apartment on the morning her body was found, and declared they all tended to support the suicide theory.

LABOR UNIONS TRY TO END BIG STRIKE

Committee Representing All Crafts Attempts to Solve Indianapolis Problem.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Indianapolis, Dec. 2.—A committee composed of representatives of all crafts affiliated with the Central Labor Union today began efforts to end the strike of the teamsters and chauffeurs. At the close of the committee meeting William G. Beatty, president of the Central Labor Union and chairman of the committee, announced that his decision as to the plan of procedure had been reached.
The status of the strike early today remained unchanged.
Negro Killed.
Claude Lewis, a negro, aged 15, was killed and three men were wounded, one probably fatally, this afternoon, when six special police officers riding on an ice wagon shot into a crowd which tried to stop the wagon on Indiana avenue. The special officers were taken to the police station but it is said they would be released as soon as they made a statement.
Police Active.
Mayor Vandergriff ordered the police today to disperse a parade which was proposed by the steamers and chauffeurs who are on a strike. The police kept the crowd about labor headquarters moving and did not give them a chance to start a demonstration.
As an additional help to the police in preventing the parade one of the fire department's large automobiles was loaned with policemen armed with riot guns.
The machine was run through the downtown streets, scattering pedestrians right and left.
The wholesalers who refused to risk their wares on the streets yesterday sent out a number of loads of goods to freight depots and outlying stores. The department stores refused to make delivery.

INSANE MAN THROWS OMRO INTO A PANIC

Village Near Oshkosh Has Exciting Time When Supposed Desperado Tries to Hold Up Bank.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Oshkosh, Dec. 2.—The village of Omro, west of this city, was thrown into a panic yesterday afternoon by an attempt to rob the Farmers' bank. The robber is supposed to be insane although he bore the appearance of a real desperado. He has been identified as Reuben Peck of Ashland. It is understood that he was an inmate of the northern hospital for the insane and is suffering from monomania which makes him believe he owns everything in the country.
He entered the bank, stepped up to the cashier, J. M. Mann, covered him with a revolver and made this statement, "I have been told I own this bank and I have a warrant deed issued by the United States for it and everything connected with it. I also own railroads and other transportation lines. The money of the country is mine and I want this bank right now."
Mr. Mann concluded his assault was demoted and to prevent the man from killing him he engaged him in conversation while the bookkeeper ran out and turned in a burglar alarm in a store next door. Edward Hardwell responded with a shot gun, but before he could raise it to his shoulder Peck had turned and was running. He was seized and taken to jail. He was brought to Oshkosh at noon.

DEFIES GAS FUMES AND STAYS IN MINE

Smudges Fail to Drive Lopez. Slayer of Six Men, from His Underground Refuge.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Bingham, Utah, Dec. 2.—The fate of Ralph Lopez, slayer of six men, remained a question early today, which it appeared that only the removal of the bulkheads and a search of the mine would answer. A search of the mine was made today and a long smudge poured their deadly gases into the tunnels. A dozen deputies watched each exit, but the expected dash for liberty did not occur.
Another clash between counsel marked the morning session of the trial of Dr. William E. Craig for the murder of Dr. Helen Knabe. Henry N. Spain, in making the opening statement of the defense, attacked the character of Harry C. Webster, a private detective, who worked up the case against Craig. Counsel for the state vigorously objected to the statement.
Judge Blair said that both sides had gone too far in the opening statements and instructed the jury to disregard anything that had been said respecting Webster's character.

What's In a Name?

If it is a name familiar to the public through persistent and truthful advertising there is a fortune in it.
It improves the old proverb of a good name being better than great riches—by making the good name bring great riches.
Advertising success is built on service.
Advertising is one of the greatest and most important factors in modern service.
It is the electric railway over which customers come to the store and goods move to the customers.
Newspaper readers are becoming greater advertising readers day by day because they find it pays.
It keeps them in touch with the men who are doing the world's work in a workmanlike way.
It tells them what to buy and when to buy at the best advantage and best of all it makes them familiar with the names worthy of their confidence.

Mrs. Henry Lindeman of Darien Arrrays Herself in Clean Dress Before Firing Fatal Shot.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Darien, Wis., Dec. 2.—Arraying herself in a dress, carefully arranging a pillow and bedding on the floor of a front room formerly used as a restaurant and pinning a note to her clothing, Mrs. Henry Lindeman, aged forty-eight, lay down and shot herself through the temple using a .22-caliber revolver. She died at midnight last night. Mrs. Lindeman still lived when her husband and Deputy Sheriff Thorpe broke down the door yesterday afternoon. She was found in a pool of blood. He said he was afraid to enter the house alone because his wife might shoot him.
The couple had quarreled a few days before and Mr. Lindeman has not lived at home since. Mrs. Lindeman had been in poor health. Three daughters survive, one of whom is Mrs. Nestrick of Racine. The note found on Mrs. Lindeman's clothing read: "I feel Henry, N. A. Lee (brother-in-law) and have A. V. Sawyer as under-taker."

FEAR FOR BLOODSHED IN ALSACE PROVINCE

Lieut. Baron Von Forstner, Who Started Trouble by Insult, Strikes Cripple With Saber.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Senheim, Alsace, Germany, Dec. 2.—Lieut. Baron Von Forstner, who started the trouble between the troops and civilians here by referring scornfully to the citizens when he addressed the recruits of his company, aroused still further indignation against the army today by cutting down a lame Alsatian shoemaker with his sabre.
The titled lieutenant was leading a half company of the 99th infantry from the barracks to the country to go through the morning drill when a group of workmen recognized Von Forstner. They looted the officer, who at once halted his company and sent a squad of armed soldiers in pursuit.
The infantrymen succeeded in catching only one man, a lame shoemaker, who resisted arrest.
Von Forstner then came up and deliberately struck him on the head with the sharpened edge of his sabre. The wound is a dangerous one.
The fresh incident created such tension that serious bloodshed is feared unless the 99th regiment is transferred immediately.

PLAN TO VOTE SOON ON CURRENCY BILL

Senate Unable to Agree on Date for Final Vote—Senator Bristow Passes Heated Remarks.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 2.—Efforts to get an agreement to vote in the senate on the currency bill on Saturday, December 20, failed today, but the senate democrats began an energetic program which they expect will force early action. Senator Bristow of Mississippi announced that it was the intention of the democrats to "exhaust the senate" and force an early vote. Senator Bristow vehemently protested against the democratic plan.
Bristow is Vehement.
Senator Bristow declared the democrats proposed to pass a bill by "physical exhaustion" instead of fair and free debate.
This made a body for intellectual discussion, a place where information was at par and physical endurance not at a premium," he cried. "The place to get physical endurance is in the prize ring and not in the senate."

MEXICAN REBELS TO OCCUPY CHIHUAHUA

ARE MUCH GRATIFIED AT THE ANNOUNCEMENT IT HAS BEEN EVACUATED BY FEDERALS

ATTACK CAPITAL NEXT

To Proceed At Once Towards the City of Mexico With Combined Forces of the Rebels in Northern Mexico.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Juarez, Mex., Dec. 2.—Hasty preparations were under way today in the rebel ranks for the occupation of Chihuahua, the capital of Chihuahua state, which is reported to have been evacuated by the federals because of threatened starvation of its 3500 population.
Important Fortress.
Pointing out that of the important federal strongholds in the north, only Monterrey and Guaymas remained, General Francisco Villa, rebel leader, said Chihuahua would be made the base of aggressive activities southward. When forces will be sent to pursue General Salvador Mercado, federal military governor, who is reported to be fleeing to the United States border at Ojinaga with 2,000 furnished soldiers, and Generals Orozco and Salazar said to have taken to the mountains. Villa declined to say definitely, but said that the advance toward Mexico City would continue briskly.

Mexico City Next

"We will be shooting at the ramparts of Mexico City within a month," Villa said. "We are confident that when the people in the capital realize that we have captured almost all of the north and are in sight of the city's gates they will voice their feeling which they are now afraid to do and will clamor for the downfall of the usurpers. A mob in the capitol can oust Huerta in a day."

To Combine Forces

With 3500 rebels and 10 field pieces advanced as far as Carrizal, 90 miles south of Juarez, on the way to Chihuahua, Villa will remain here until he communicates with General Carranza before he personally proceeds south. At Chihuahua he expects to join General Chao and other rebel leaders and with a combined force of 8000 proceed toward Zacatecas, the important city south of Torreón. Other rebel forces, Villa said, are to proceed toward the west coast toward Guadalajara.
Forced to Evacuate.
According to late reports which Villa said he received by couriers, who traveled overland 130 miles to Villa Ahumada, where the telegram line has been connected with Juarez, the desertion of Chihuahua by the federals, was brought about by the pressure of the citizens. The people, it was said, protested that if the federal garrison remained the city would result in the wholesale killing of non-combatants, that the poor were half starved and that the wealthy residents could not expect mercy at the hands of the rebels.

SALE OF CHRISTMAS SEALS IS UNDER WAY

Ten Thousand Have Been Placed With Banks, Bookstores, Drug and Dry Goods Stores.

Good progress is being made in the campaign for the sale of the Red Cross Christmas seals by the Janesville Anti-Tuberculosis Association. Ten thousand have been placed for sale with the banks, drug stores, book stores and dry goods stores. Thirty thousand more will be disposed of at other business places if possible. The total number allotted to the local Association is 40,000.

All the school children of the city have been enlisted in the campaign. Their principals and teachers yesterday introduced to them the purpose and conditions of the seal campaign and as soon as they learn how many seals each pupil will take, the seals will be placed in their hands. The only prize offered to the school children this year is an attractive button bearing the Red Cross emblem and the name of the association. Each child that sells twenty-five or more stamps will receive one of these buttons.

The local campaign is being directed by the Rev. Henry Willmann and Miss Mable Greenman, officers in the local Anti-Tuberculosis Association. The Christmas seal campaign of 1912 was conducted in 1,169 communities. There were used 18,500 pieces of display advertising and 100,000 pieces of general circular advertising. The Christmas seal campaign is a school movement. No state leads Wisconsin in general knowledge, interest or purposeful activity against the ravages of consumption. The Wisconsin volunteer movement is the only notable statewide movement financed solely by the Red Cross Christmas seal.

FEARING HARD TIMES ALL ROADS CONTINUE TO LAY OFF WORKMEN

C. M. & St. Paul Company Takes Lead in This Section, by Cutting Off 20 Per Cent of Help.

Clerks, trainmen, section hands, freight and passenger employees, and roundhouse hands, are being laid off every day, by practically every railroad in the country. This section of the state, the St. Paul road stands out above the rest of the companies, as taking the most stringent move in trying to dodge the hard times, which are expected any time. In the Milwaukee shops alone the St. Paul road have laid off 750 men out of 2,500 employees, which is over 20 per cent. Roadmaster Franklin of the Milwaukee division, who has his offices in this city, has received orders to retain on service only the section foreman and to discontinue with all help which can be done away with. Station Agent Fred W. Zimmerman also received orders to the extent that if there is any of the present help at the freight house that could be done away with, he should act accordingly.

Throughout the country, an average of thirty per cent of the total number of railroad employees, in all of the various lines, are being laid off. Of course, this time of the year has something to do with a slight lay-off, but this year exceeds all others in reducing expenses.

CLUB ANXIOUS FOR IMMEDIATE RESULTS

Twenty-five Thousand Club Considers Prospects at Regular Meeting Last Evening.

Assured by the members of the Twenty-five Thousand Club, in regular monthly meeting at the city hall last evening, that the club stood behind them in a substantial way in their efforts to secure factories for Janesville, the board of directors received very encouraging and added stimulus for the work in hand.

While it was the opinion expressed that the club's investigating committee had been inclined to be critical in the examination of prospective manufacturing concerns for Janesville, the members supported the club's liberality which had been exercised as an indication to safeguard possible investors.

All members of the club are eager to secure substantial results and it is expected that with the cooperation of the members the directors will redouble their activity in the interest of the organization. It was plainly shown that the board of directors had not been idle and had carefully considered every proposition which had been presented to them, although some of them were impossible to start with. The directors have thought it wise to be practically unanimous in fixing their approval on a proposed factory before bringing it to the members of the club for consideration, and the intent has been to be absolutely sure of their ground before making definite recommendations. In not a few instances cities from which factories would be moved, have come forward with substantial inducements so that the concerns withdrawn from the club's consideration.

M. P. Richardson presided at the meeting last night in the absence of Frank P. Croak. Among the suggestions forwarded for consideration was the engagement of an experienced promoter who has been successful in booming other Wisconsin cities. Stock for new concerns might be solicited in small amounts from laboring men, it was urged, and the idea was uppermost that every class—employer and employee—should have a hand in any movement whose end it was to stimulate greater industrial activity with its attendant results.

Secretary J. W. Van Reymond read several letters from one or two factory concerns that had of late been considered by the directors as possible Janesville institutions. One concern which employs thirty-five men reported it was doing a flourishing business with a reasonable profit and prospects for expanding with increased capital. No new building would be required at present but one would be erected as soon as the business would warrant.

The further investigation of this concern was left to the directors with the instructions from the club to "get busy," and if the concern is endorsed a mass meeting will be held at which the project will be raffled and the different members will be given an opportunity to aid in the booster work.

GINK AND DINK. POOR OLD PETEY! ISN'T IT THE LIMIT?

Sport Snap Shots

The daily stunts of a pinch hitter are not exactly the pipe they might be painted. The pinch hitter that can wind up the season with an average of .300 or near it—bunching safely once out of every three trips to the plate—should get the plaudits and commendation that generally greet a regular batter who is hitting at a much fatter average. Batters in the line-up every day and with four or five chances at the bat a day should certainly be able to land offener than the pinch hitter who gets only an occasional swing at it. But continual practice is a big item in the success of a batter. Sitting on the bench a big part of the time doesn't do a great deal in the way of cultivating a man's agility with the Hickory. Moreover, a pinch hitter approaching the plate is under a greater stress than the average batsman. It is almost demanded of him that he deliver. He knows that if he falls down he will be greeted with exclamations of displeasure—loud-voiced ones as a rule—from the unreasoning hags in the stands. And yet the fans are the ones who demand the continuance of the pinch hitting. There are managers, and among them those who have the greatest success with pinch hitters, who would drop the pinch hitting. They would prefer to get along without it. And it is discouraging sometimes to see a pitcher who has pitched a great game up to the last inning, and then, by a pinch hitter who fails to deliver and then in the inning following see the opposition hammer the fire out of the new pitcher who has been sent in the box.

Yale, after a rather indifferent season on the gridiron, isn't able to look forward to a very cheering prospect in the season to come. Old Eli will lose more of her varsity material through graduation than any other of the big colleges. At least six of the best of their bunch will be missing next season when the red coat of made and among them Captain Ketchum and Marting, the star center, Talbot, Warren, Pendleton and Avery are all last year men and will never again don the blue. Harvard is more fortunate and while they will lose Storer, Hittchcock and O'Brien, the other stars, including Brickley, who wins the games for them, will remain. Princeton expects a great deal from her freshman material next year and will be able to do a great deal more here than either Harvard or Yale. Some of the freshmen stars the season past were of more than ordinary varsity material. Also most of the Princeton stars of the varsity will return next year and the chances for a fast bunch of Tigers next year seem to be very good indeed.

The chief reason why Joe Tinker is no longer associated with the Cincinnati Reds is apparent. Joe, it seems, had a foolish idea that it was his function there to run the team and have an occasional word to say in regard to what was to be done. This was a mistake. A manager of the Cincinnati Reds should never get the idea that his opinion on team matters is of any value whatever. Mr. Herrmann and the rest of the club owners there resent any effort on the part of the "manager" to have a voice in affairs and it's because Tinker tried to fill his job that he displeased his employers. When Joe found what he was up against he resigned. Perhaps Clark Griffith was the only Red manager who ever came near managing the team in the real sense of the word and it was an awful struggle for him. Ned Hanlon, Jawn Ganzel and Hank O'Day all made a stab at managing the Reds with like results. All of them gave it up with sighs of relief. Being manager of the Cincinnati Reds is like battling a fast one through Honus Wagner's mitts—it can't be done.

STATE TITLE STANDS BY ITSELF AS THREE TEAMS FAIL TO PLAY

Madison, Sparta and Oshkosh Hold Sectional Championships, With State Flag In Doubt.

By the refusal of Oshkosh to play Sparta, and the refusal of Madison to play either Sparta or Oshkosh, the state championship in the high school football world of Wisconsin for 1913 stands as a question of doubt. Only sectional championships are noticeable and positively certain. Oshkosh claiming the title of the northeastern section of the state, Sparta of the northwestern and central, and Madison in the southern section. These sectional titles cannot be doubted, because each of the three teams mentioned have shown individual class in their respective districts, class which has not been equaled by any other high school eleven in the state. La Crosse almost won the northwestern and central title from Sparta last Thursday, when they were defeated in a bitter struggle 13 to 10.

High school football in 1913 differs greatly from that of 1912 and other years back. Faster football was noticeable, particularly with Madison, who showed more speed than many of the secondary college elevens. Coach Winters of the Capital City eleven is a man worthy of mention, as being a coach who knows the business. His eleven were hard to score upon, as their attack was so strongly centered on line smashes and forward passes, the two great assets of modern football. Tricks are falling off among high school teams, teams playing mostly straight football, with a pass now and then. Oshkosh were by no means a scoring machine. They have outweighed every high school squad that they have played this year, and the best they could register was from one to three touchdowns. Their defense was powerful, a fast team, being almost helpless before the stone wall of the lumberjacks. While they will claim the state title, in their opinion, others will regard them as being below the standard set by the Madison and Sparta elevens. Sparta played good football all fall, and showed up Oshkosh decidedly in their game of a few weeks ago.

The football lid is closed and basketball will be taken up as an indoor amusement in its place. Strong fives will be represented in the running this year for the title of Wisconsin, and La Crosse, particularly, intends to make it hard for opponents in eliminating her. La Crosse held Janesville in the final game at Appleton last spring, although they were completely outclassed. They lose one man, Dornbach, a star guard, while Janesville loses both her star guards, Menominee, Fond du Lac, Madison, Racine, Baraboo, Beloit, Ashland, Oshkosh, Wausau, Eau Claire and Superior will be other strong fives in the running this winter.

GOLDEN EAGLE TEAM BEATEN BY DRUGGIST BOWLERS

The Golden Eagle bowlers were defeated by the Druggist five last night at the Miller's alleys by 222 pins. Both teams rolled in poor form and low scores were the result. Tonight an exciting contest is expected between the married and single men among the bowlers of the alley. The last time these teams met the married men nosed out a victory and the single are out for revenge. Monday's scores:

A Los Angeles sport critic declares that Joe Rivers' imagination is the one thing that keeps him from becoming the champion lightweight fighter of the world. ARE COOMBS AND WALSH, BASEBALL'S GREATEST IRON MEN, DOWN AND OUT?

Ed Walsh (left) and Jack Coombs.

According to some of the closest followers of the national game, Jack Coombs of the Philadelphia Athletics and Ed Walsh of the Chicago White Sox, the greatest iron men of baseball, have seen their best days. Both are getting along well in years, and both failed to do much during the season of 1913. Coombs will not go on the training trip next spring, but expects to do some pitching for Connie Mack. Walsh probably will not be released by Chicago during the season of 1914, though he will be used little unless he shows improvement over his work of last season.

W. RITCHIE LIKES GOLF; SAYS SCOTCH PASTIME HELPS HIM IN HIS TRAINING

Willie Ritchie as he appears on the links.

Willie Ritchie is some golfer and he believes that the ancient Scotch game does much to help condition a fighter, a ball player or an athlete in any walk of life. The lightweight champion is going to take his daily trip to the links while he is working for his coming battle with Harlem Tommy Murphy, and he is just game enough to play against all comers.

"I never thought of golf till I was back in New York on my last trip," laughed the little title holder in San Francisco the other day. "Some friends who just rave over the game finally persuaded me to go out on the links one morning. Just to please them, I made the trip, but inwardly I felt bored, for I thought it was too tame a game for me.

"Well, I got stuck on the Scotch sport right away, and ever since I have been spending all my spare time on the links."

The Evolution of Wealth.

Originally the process of accumulation comes by the toiler who spends less than he receives; eventually he is what is called a capitalist. If all were either improvident, vicious or incompetent, civilization would speedily decline, therefore the real benefactors of the rest are those who accumulate. Some of us have the capacity, others have not; that is an inexorable law of nature which cannot be altered.—Leslie's.

NEW BOWLING ALLEYS OF FINEST MATERIAL

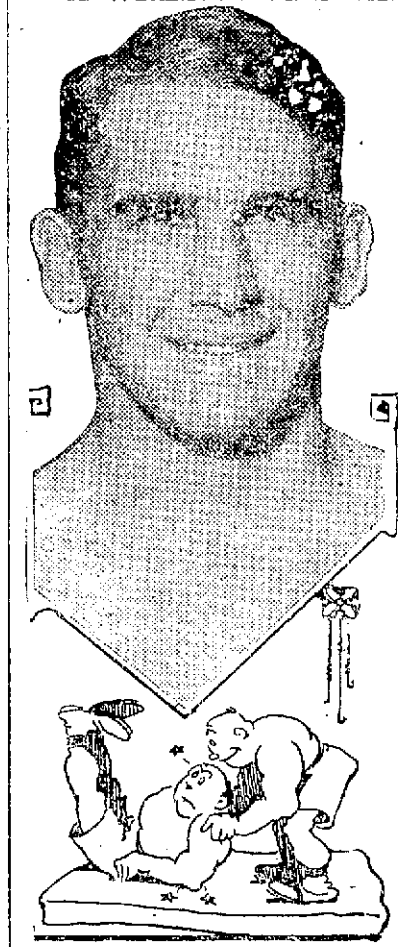

Three National Tournament Alleys Used at Toledo Last Winter, are Being Installed at Y. M. C. A.

Secretary J. C. Kline of the local Y. M. C. A. is having three of the world's best bowling alleys placed at the new local building. They are made by the Brunswick-Balke-Coller Company of Chicago, and they represent the finest quality of workmanship. The alleys have been used two weeks, by America's best bowlers, who demand nothing but the best. The Brunswick company made these alleys especially for the national tournament bowlers, who held their annual meeting at Toledo, Ohio, last spring. Every section is carefully selected from the best maple wood, the grains of each section being identically the same.

The work is almost completed by the Brunswick workmen, who have been working at them since the early part of last week. They are being re-sealed, re-oiled and re-varnished. Such alleys as these are not sold in stock anywhere. Mr. Kline spent a good deal of effort in trying to obtain these alleys, with successful results. Three dozen balls of various sizes and weights have been received, and the pins are regulation, as used at the national tournament. In fact, the entire set of apparatus as used at Toledo has been sent to the local institution.

Every indication points to a successful year at the association following the opening day. Mr. Kline is confident that the building will be in working order soon although he sets no date. He is anxious to have all of the departments ready to start at once. The Brunswick billiard and pool tables arrived yesterday, and they will be installed sometime this week. Found New Way to Obtain Credit.

A new way of establishing a line of credit is told by the Horton Headlight. "A man went into a Horton store and said he owed a bill of $2 for goods bought several years before. The storekeeper failed to find the account on his books, but as the man insisted he owed the money, the merchant accepted it. He invited the man to run a bill again, which he did. In fact he bought about $25 worth of goods, and up to date has not paid the bill."

To Clean Picture Frames.

To clean picture frames, put a gill of vinegar into a pint of soda water. Remove all dust from the frames; dip a large camel's hair brush into the mixture, squeeze it partly dry, then brush the gilt, doing a small portion at a time.

Described. Various dishes in the Hungarian restaurant were numbered for the convenience of the waitresses and the benefit of the patrons. A young couple entered. The orchestra struck up the "William Tell" overture. Turning to her escort, the young woman said: "That's familiar—what is it?" The man glanced up at the orchestra and saw the number three displayed. Then, with the air of one who is accustomed to cafe life, he looked up number three on the bill of fare. "That," he replied, when he had located it, "is 'Fillet Mignon,' by Champignons."

WAYLAND ACADEMY BOYS ENTERTAINED

Alonzo and Edwin Pond and Culton Sayle Hosts to Company of School Friends for Thanksgiving Holiday.

A company of twelve boys returned to Wayland Academy at Beaver Dam this morning after enjoying a relaxing good time in this city as the guests of their schoolmates, Alonzo and Edwin Pond, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Pond, Milwaukee avenue, and Culton Sayles, son of W. P. Sayles. The boys were entertained with a dancing party last evening at the Pond home.

The boys arrived in this city Saturday evening. They were met at Milton Junction by Mr. Pond, who had secured himself in such a manner that he was not recognized by his own sons, who found that the joke was on them before they reached Janesville, when they were "tipped off" by one of the trainmen.

As soon as they got off the train the round of festivities began. First there was a grandstand of songs and yells at the Grand Hotel for the Smiths, who is a relative of the Wayland coach, and then they proceeded to the home of the Misses Ada and Etta Pond, 17 East street, where the first course of a progressive Bohemian luncheon was served. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Sayles, 222 Court street, the next course was served, and at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bailey, 102 Jefferson avenue, the merry crowd was directed by a series of signs to one corner of the room where hot waffles were dispensed from a "dog" wagon. The last installment was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pond.

The boys were entertained at a Thanksgiving dinner at the Pond home on Sunday evening. They were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Pond, Monday morning, they took breakfast with the Misses Pond on East street; they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bailey at luncheon and had dinner at six o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sayles.

Monday evening a dancing party was enjoyed at the Pond home as an elaborate climax to the series of entertainments, among which should also be mentioned an automobile joyride party at which Fred Wolfe was the host.

The time spent in Janesville will long be remembered by the Wayland lads. This was the first time in the history of the school that a party of students has been allowed a visit away from the school without being accompanied by an instructor, and the liberty was thoroughly appreciated. The boys proved themselves to be men in the highest sense of the word and will be eager to visit their Janesville friends again.

The list of guests follows: Cyrus Williams, Maurice Gordon, Herbert Savage and Alex. Winfield, all of Chicago; Elmer Khanstun, Kenosha, Wis.; James Peachey, Burnett, Wis.; Donald Cain, Dubuque, Ia.; and Edward Revell of Rockford, Ill. Harold Talbert, of Vabash, Ind., was the guest of Culton Sayles.

CURRENT TALKS AT SOCIETY MEETINGS

Forum and Rusk Lyceum Hold Regular Sessions at High School Last Evening—Debates Good.

The regular weekly meetings of the boys' societies of the high school were held last evening at seven-fifteen. The most interesting part to note concerning the program of the Forum, was the practical debate which was so well given, resulting in a 2 to 1 decision for the affirmative. The question was, Resolved, that in the interests of world peace, the United States begins to diminish its proportional naval expenditure. This question was the same one that the local high school the championship of the Beloit College league last winter. Greene and Spohn composed the affirmative side, while Frick and O'Brien made up the negative team last evening. Other subjects on the program were as follows:

"The March of Cities"..... Beard in Alaska
"Topic"..... Ivory Gardner in Alaska
"The Aviator"..... McDermott in Alaska
"World's Greatest Football Coaches"..... Jones in Alaska

Rusk Lyceum.
The Rusk program was also interesting. Their debate required a free hard thinking, and as the result, some strong points were given. The question read, Resolved, that the elective system of study should be installed in all high schools. Resolved, that the affirmative won a 2 to 1 decision over the negative. Other topics followed:

"New Aviation"..... Dearborn
"Road Building by Criminals in Colorado"..... Williams

JAMES CANTWELL IS GIVEN NINE MONTHS

Judge Maxfield Imposes Jail Sentence Upon Condition That Young Man Agrees To Attend Church.

Upon the condition that he agree to attend church regularly, James Cantwell, who appeared before Judge Maxfield this morning to petition for the filing of the information against him and waiving of his preliminary examination that he might plead guilty to obtaining by false pretenses, was sentenced to nine months in jail under the commitment law.

Cantwell sold a cow belonging to his brother, to A. G. Metzinger, during the month of this year for which he secured $30. W. H. Dougherty, Cantwell's attorney, appeared in his client's behalf and asked the court to take into consideration the young man's age, the fact that it was his first offense, that he had a wife and baby depending upon him for support and that he was now fully penitent, realizing the seriousness of his transgression.

Judge Maxfield questioned Cantwell closely regarding his habits of life and the reasons for his irresponsibility. He admitted that he had neglected his wife and baby and that he had spent about half his time in idleness and "bumming." He agreed it was not the right thing to do and seemed ready to mend his ways.

"Do you ever attend church?" asked Judge Maxfield. "Sometimes," was the answer. "Upon the condition that you attend church regularly during your commitment under chapter 610 of the laws of 1913, I will sentence you to nine months in jail. The sheriff will find you a job. Your wages will go to your wife," said Judge Maxfield.

Young Cantwell's wife and mother were both questioned by Judge Maxfield. They had no fault to find with him beyond his idleness and irresponsibility. "He's a pretty good boy," said his mother.

TO COMPLETE PLANS FOR ANNUAL EXHIBIT

Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association Will Hold Meeting for That Purpose Tonight.

Arrangements for the 1913 poultry show of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association, to be held at the Auditorium January 12 to 17, will be practically completed. A meeting of the directors and officers to be held at McVicar Brothers store this evening. The premium list is now being published and copies will be mailed out to former exhibitors at the Janesville and other shows early next week. A number of inquiries for them have already been made. Circular letters will also be sent out to exhibitors setting forth the special advantages and inducements held forth by the local association.

Secretary Douglas King reports that the merchants and other business men have been unusually generous in contributing special prizes. There will be more of them offered, and better ones than ever before.

E. G. Roberts of Ft. Atkinson and J. Charles V. Kessler of Winnebago, and other judges of poultry in the country, have secured for the exhibition an assurance to the poultrymen that their birds will be correctly estimated.

The Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association holds the distinction of being one of the few that are consistently successful. It has never failed to pay its premiums, it has improved and grown from year to year, and there has been no dissension between officers or serious dissatisfaction on the part of any number of exhibitors.

ANNUAL MEETING OF GOLF CLUB WILL BE TENTH OF DECEMBER

Election of Board of Directors and Plans for Year Discussed on That Date.

On December 10th the annual meeting of the Janesville Golf Club will be held at the Grand Hotel. It is planned to hold a regular club supper at seven o'clock, followed by several short talks, preceding the annual election of the board of directors and officers for the coming year. The idea of holding a club supper in connection with the annual meeting is an experiment this year, but should prove most successful and will doubtless attract more members to attend than usually are present at the annual elections. The committee having charge of the affair have planned a unique program in connection with the supper which will be most entertaining.

BELOIT'S TAX RATE IS SLIGHTLY HIGHER

$16.90 and $17.40 per Thousand Are Figures for East and West Sides Respectively.

An increase of nearly two dollars on a thousand is noted in the tax rate of the city of Beloit which was announced to the council last night. The rate for the east side of the river will be $16.90 on each thousand and on the west side $17.40 on a thousand. The city will raise a little less than $230,000 in city, state and county taxes. The difference in rates for the two sides of the river is due to the different amounts raised for school purposes on the two sides of the river. Both figures are slightly higher than the Janesville rate of $15.40 per thousand. The Beloit rate is usually higher than Janesville's.

The rate for the city of Oshkosh which has just been announced is $17.50 against $21.50 last year, a notable decrease due to the economy of the city administration.

SOUTH JANESVILLE SALOON MAN FINED

F. W. Smith Convicted of Selling Liquor on Sunday, Receives Fine of $25 and Costs.

F. W. Smith, South Janesville saloonkeeper, who was convicted by a jury in the municipal court on Monday of selling intoxicating liquor on Sunday in violation of the state law, was fined $25 and costs by Judge Maxfield this morning. An adjournment was taken in the case in order to determine the amount of the costs.

Attorney John L. Fisher asked the court for leniency in behalf of his client, calling attention to the fact that this was Smith's first offense and that Smith's practice had been illegal since he had been ignorant of the fact. District Attorney Dunwiddie stated that he was confident the jury had rendered a just verdict and that Smith was guilty of the offense as charged. "South Janesville has caused me a lot of trouble," said Dunwiddie, "and I want to see conditions improved down there."

A quart of drinks was arranged in court this morning. Gilbert Olson who paid a fine of $25 and costs last week, was given a term of ninety days flat as a reminder against repetition of such an offense. Ole Knudson and Orlando Kingsley paid fines of $10 and costs and Albert Jennings was sentenced to ten days in jail.

THAT LETTER

FREDERICA suppressed a giggle as she combed her hair. She had a transitory vision of Mortlake's face when he read the letter she had sent him.

For the past sixty days she had barred all amatory passages between them, or advances on the part of Teddy himself. And when, in retaliation of her cruelty, Mortlake had deliberately chosen to direct his love-making in another channel Frederica had smiled and said nothing; she knew about what it amounted to.

But everything grows monotonous at times, and after a lapse of ten days, during which she neither saw nor heard of him, she resolved upon heroic measures.

She went over to a window. For a moment she stood and looked absently at the shifting orange and purple lights in the sunset clouds; then she turned impatiently back to her dressing table and glanced at her watch lying on it. It was already past time to dress, but she only shrugged at the irksome necessity of making a toilet for no one in particular, and selected the plainest of gowns.

When the final touch had been given she picked up a hand-glass and studied her reflection closely. She tried to believe that she was growing pale, but the vivid pink throbbled insistently under the down of her cheeks, and her tremulous lips were scarlet.

All at once she broke into a soft little laugh, as her mind reverted swiftly to the lines she had written Teddy Mortlake. After all, the breach between them was of her own making and she could get him back at the crook of her finger.

But she was not quite ready to crook it. He must suffer first for his absurd but wanton vengeance. She wondered how he would take her abrupt announcement of her approaching marriage with Tom Weatherly.

As Frederica turned to go downstairs, the maid intercepted her in the doorway with a special delivery letter. The handwriting on the back of it was not familiar, and she took it up with a vague sense of apprehension, breaking the seal with unsteady fingers.

"My dear Miss Mauristien," it began. She turned to the signature: Hastings Willard. She pondered the name with a puzzled frown, then suddenly it came to her. Hastings Willard must be the uncle Teddy had spoken of as coming from Colorado to visit him in the summer — of course. She turned back to the beginning and read the sentences through rapidly.

"Your letter to Theodore came last night. You will forgive me for withholding it when I tell you that the poor boy is suffering from a serious attack of melancholia. The specialist has ordered complete quiet and freedom from mental tax; and, knowing, as I do, his feelings for you, I dared not let him see what you had written until I could be assured that there was nothing of an exciting nature in the contents. Will you be good enough to advise me at once in regard to this matter? Yours very truly,

"Hastings Willard."

The roses' red from Frederica's cheeks. What should she do? Which way should she turn? If the gooseman had only had the sense to send that watched letter back to her at once! Well, she could recall it, she supposed, and she would, without delay.

She crossed to her desk and scribbled a few hurried lines on a sheet of paper; then she rang for the maid and ordered the note dispatched to Mortlake's address immediately.

Frederica averted a terrible heart while she waited. A succession of miserable little lumps rose in her throat and choked her; tears, whole rivers of them, kept her eyes red. She walked the floor and wrung her hands and berated herself in every term of abuse.

At last came the reply. She took it with eager hands and scanned the words Willard had written with frightened eyes.

My Dear Miss Mauristien -- I herewith return your letter, as requested. Yes, Theodore is truly in a serious condition; as a matter of fact, this depressed condition of mind, brought on I presume by some strain of lengthy duration, threatens to become a madness. The best we can do is to hope and wait. However, I might suggest that a few lines of sympathy and encouragement from yourself may brighten the poor boy up a trifle. Yours in all sincerity,

"Hastings Willard."

For fully an hour Frederica's pen raced furiously over the paper. Her penitence was complete, absolute. Certainly Teddy, if he ever came back to his right mind again, would have nothing to complain of as far as the genuineness of her affection was concerned.

But the only way she could think of him now, or ever, was behind the barred doors of a madhouse. She thought of her own desolation, on this side of the impassable barrier, stretching out vain hands to him—the eternal bitterness of a dead, meaningless intuition.

As one moving in a dream, she sealed and directed the letter she had written, drew on her coat and walked to the postoffice herself.

Mortlake paced the length of the veranda, and with both hands on the banister stood staring gloomily at the flower beds below.

Frederica watched him with furtive, unsmiling eyes for a moment, then rose and followed him.

"How do you imagine that I can ever trust you again?" she demanded with scornful eyes, after—after—the

"You deceived me!" she cried, and burst into tears.

"But I—you—why will you not let me explain?" begged Mortlake appealingly. "The fact is—"

"BUT I—WHY—WHY WILL YOU NOT LET ME EXPLAIN?" BEGGED MORTLAKE.

words caught chokingly in her throat and she gulped them down.

"My dear little girl," he pleaded abjectly, "it was more than I could—could endure."

"I can't see where there is any possible explanation," broke in Frederica; "nothing that you could say would make any difference—now."

"Freddie!" he cried, reproachfully.

Silence.

"Frederica!"

"Well?"

"Do you mean to tell me that you are not going to keep your word? That it was all a sham?"

"That isn't the question," she snapped; "everything was a farce from beginning to end, and I—I hate you!"

"But, darling," he pleaded frantically, "I was in a state of melancholia."

"You weren't too ill to—"

"Listen, Freddie," he interrupted in a wistful tone; "I couldn't help it. It was so hard ever to get anything out of you. I—I got to me that—that you were going to marry Weatherly. In fact, you said so yourself."

"I?"

Mortlake flushed and stammered. "Did—didn't you?" he asked lamely. Frederica contemplated him with increasing ire.

"But I understood from your Mr. Willard's letter—that—that—"

"O Willard—there never was any. I made my man Peters write at my own dictation. I—"

"Teddy!"

"And I was mad—delirious—wild," he hurried on breathlessly.

"For love of you," he whispered, and opened his arms.

There was no resistance.

The Rio Grande

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slwash."

THE Rio Grande is a long, medium sized, meandering river which forms the southern boundary of civilization in North America.

It is one of the world's most peculiar rivers. In places it can be waded with ease by chickens, and boatmen make good money poing travelers across in small flat bottomed boats. But civilization cannot navigate it. While man and beast are swarming across it cheerfully and with such ease as to make the customs officers scratch their heads and look extremely dubious as to whether it remains on the north shore yelling for help. And no one seems able to come forward with said help.

The Rio Grande is only a quarter of a mile in width and is profusely decorated with sand bars. There are plenty of bridges across it and one may insert himself into a parlor car and ride from shore to shore for a quarter. Yet the free and unrestricted ballot, general education, the habeas corpus, and most of the ten commandments have never gotten across it from north to south with any degree of success.

On the other hand, the bull fight, the political dictator and the pulque mill have remained permanently on the south side.

So have the rurals, the Yaqui Indian agent and the beneficent law which permits the authorities to give a political prisoner his choice of being shot while escaping or while refusing to escape.

It will thus be seen that while the Rio Grande has worked wonders for the country north of it, it is exceedingly hard on the people who are so unfortunate as to reside south of it and who do not possess the necessary car fare and bridge tolls.

In fact, humanity would suggest that the Rio Grande should be moved immediately to a point several hundred miles south in order that at least a portion of Mexico may be admitted to the beneficent atmosphere which prevails on the north side.

The Rio Grande itself recognizes the virtue of this suggestion occasionally by shifting its channel and transferring large slices of Mexican territory to its north side.

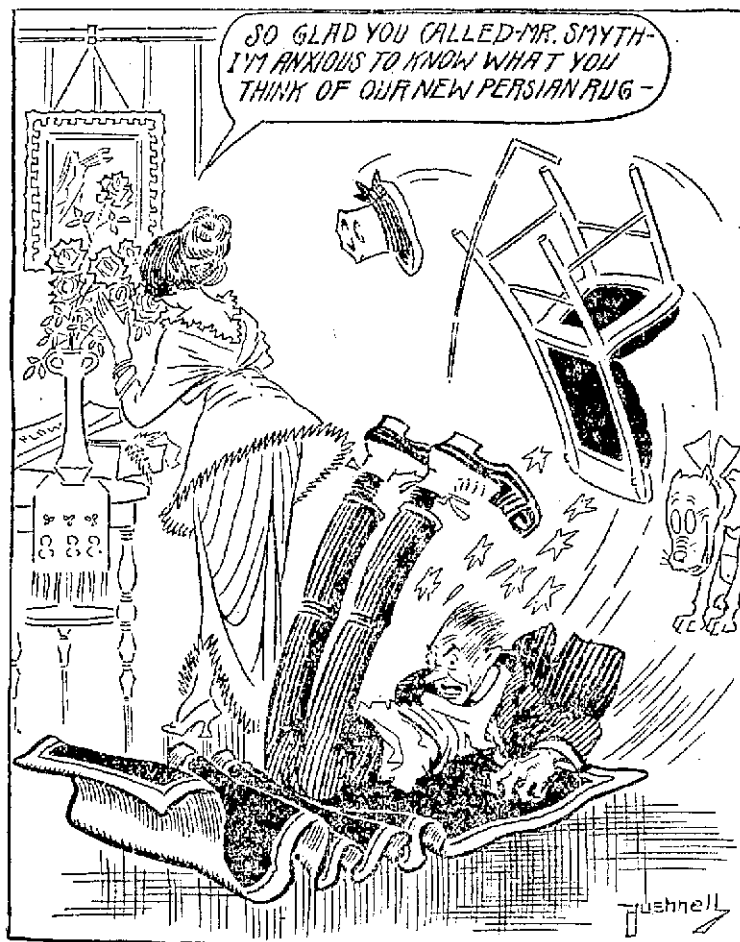

If only all governments were as wise as some rivers!

Scents Big Bluff.

It is said by officials of the Rock County Sugar Company that the big plant at Janesville would be permanently closed down after this winter's run of beets, based on their decision on the tariff which allows foreign sugar to come in without duty. If this thing is tried generally by our manufacturers who have taken millions upon millions unjustly from the consumers, we would like to see the federal government investigate the cases and give the public authentic facts and figures and let all know for a certainty if the old bluff is justified. Such action is cheering public opinion, is not at variance with twentieth century enlightened business methods.—Brookhead Independent-Register.

Country With One Jail.

Iceland is altogether a law-abiding place. There is only one jail, and that rarely ever has more than two people in it. This is to be largely accounted for by the fact that there is not a distillery or a brewery in all Iceland.—Exchange.

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LURIE

"HOWDY-DO!"

Have you ever heard of little Bobby, the "howdy-do boy?"

He is worth knowing.

Bobby is two and a half years old. He lives in one of America's smaller cities. He is one of the bright, sunny haired and sunny tempered little fellows whose presence in a home is one of the highest blessings of life.

When the weather is fine Bobby sits on the veranda of his home to observe life. Whenever any one passes, from Bobby's lips comes the cheery greeting:

"Howdy-do!"

Bobby is too young to have heard anything about the things which are worth while, so he does not know that he fills a high place on the list. He is very much worth while, for he helps to lighten life for others.

The workman on his way to shop or office hears Bobby's greeting, and in the sun shines more brightly. The working girl on her way home after a day's toil sees little Bobby's smile, and the weary back and aching brain lose some of their pain.

The other evening a girl who looked tired, as though her day's duties had worried her, heard Bobby's cheerful "Howdy-do!" She stopped, turned toward him, smiled, stepped from the sidewalk to the veranda, took Bobby in her arms, kissed him and said:

"You dear, you are the first person that has greeted me kindly today. Bless your heart." Bobby smiled and said: "Doodly. Tum again."

Of the salt of the earth is Bobby.

And the parents who have so polished the precious jewel entrusted to their care—all honor and praise to them! It is safe to say that Bobby's name will never be found among those of "spoiled children."

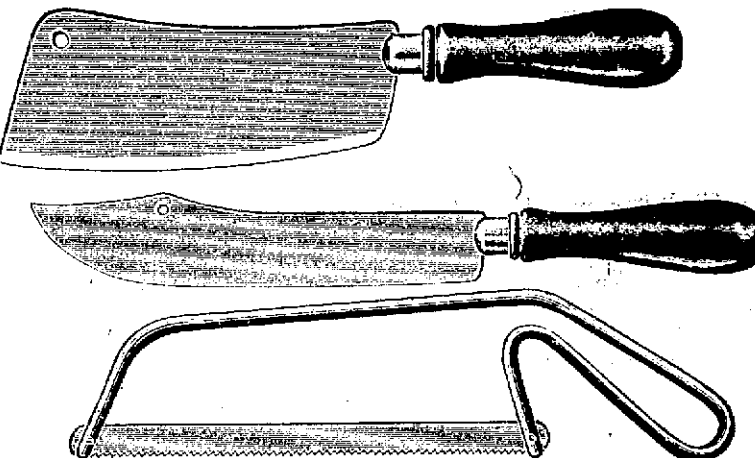

But—

There are too few "howdy-do" people. We could have many more such among children and adults if we would only stop to think how little a kindly greeting costs and how much good one may do.

Imagine yourself sitting on the veranda of life and watching the procession of your fellow human beings pass before you. There is no cheaper, better way of gaining for yourself the good name that is better than riches than by greeting them with a cheerful—

"Howdy-do!"

WATER BICYCLE

Propeller Operated by Pedals While Floats Support It.

Decidedly unique is the water bicycle patented by an Illinois man and shown in the illustration. A long bar has wing-like floats at two sections to support it, and at the rear end is a propeller. This propeller is operated by pedals, that drive a small wheel depending from the back and by a gear in front, that is turned by the hands. This gives double impetus to the revolutions of the shaft.

STEER RUDDER WITH CHIN.

The "rider" lies on his stomach along the top of the bar, and his chin rests in a pivoted support that turns the rudder, which is in front. By turning his head one way or the other the operator can steer easily and well. While the apparatus is made bulky, it is probably just as well that the user should know how to swim as well as how to ride a bicycle.

Their Expression.

Nothing is to me more distasteful than that entire complacency and satisfaction which beam in the countenances of a newly-married couple—in that of the lady particularly; it tells you that her lot is disposed of in this world; that you can have no hopes of her. It is true I have none, nor wishes either, perhaps; but this is one of those truths which ought, as I said before, to be taken for granted, not expressed.—Charles Lamb.

December 2, 1913.—A slow rearrangement of the distribution of atmospheric pressure is now taking place. The area of high barometer that was on the north Pacific coast yesterday has advanced to the northern Rocky Mountain region, where it is attended by fair and colder weather.
The barometric depression that extended across the middle Mississippi valley from the southwest has retreated, and the barometer has risen throughout the central states, and fair weather prevails in the Ohio valley and Tennessee. Rain and snow will continue falling on the plains, however.
The barometer is low in the Canadian northwest, and chinook weather prevails along the eastern front of the Canadian Rockies.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

WHEN NOT TO MARRY.

IS IT possible to place too much stress upon marriage as necessary to a woman's happiness? A reader friend thinks it is. Whether you agree with her or not, you will surely find her point of view interesting.

"What do you think is the influence on young people," she writes, "of all that is printed and talked about woman's only real happiness being found in marriage, home and children?"

"I will tell you a case I know. The girl is twenty-five and for several years has been earning a good salary. She has a good and pleasant home and work that is neither hard nor coming. Now she is engaged to be married and these are some of the reasons she gives:

"You know I am twenty-five and they say a girl has very few chances to marry after she passes that age."

"I want a home of my own."

"J— has no bad habits and he is crazy about me."

"But what seems to be the one great recommendation that will make a proper father for her children. That article in one of the magazines several months ago on 'Will he make a proper father for my children?' seems to have taken complete hold of her mind. Unquestionably she has chosen a young man that can fill that requirement, but "She doesn't pretend to be much in love."

"He is only earning about the same salary as she does."

"He hasn't nearly the brains or business ability that she has, and here is the stronger personality."

"Now don't you think that she is one of many girls who have read too much about this wonderful happiness to be found only in a home and children?"

"I have had both for many years and I greatly appreciate and enjoy them, but I also know that there must be real love on both sides, that a man must have brains and ability enough to command our respect, and the fact that he has led a clean life and is a proper father for our children is only one of many important factors of a happy home."

"I think the press has said a little too much on this subject, and many girls are making the mistake of thinking they must have a home and children, and they are taking men who are unconsented and many times undesirable, just because they are looking for this happiness they read so much about."

"One only has to look at the divorce records to see that many of them have failed to find it."

"I wish you would write something on the question."

"Personally, I think this is rather a good point of view. Some of the happiest women I have known have been old maids. The possession of a home, the sense of being needed, the expansion of motherhood, all give happiness, but then so do freedom, the joy of congenial work, independence and, last but not least, a private purse-string."

The unmarried woman misses some things but the married woman misses others. Marriage where there is a deep love on both sides is ideal, but whether a woman will be happier married to a man she does not deeply love or making her own way, depends largely on the nature of the woman.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

If the white of an egg is used in mixing a mustard plaster, there is little or no danger of blistering the most sensitive skin.

Do not throw away old toothbrushes. Use them to apply blacking to your shoes either the liquid or paste. It is excellent for getting the blacking into the sole of the shoe and the upper part.

To keep a cut lemon fresh for a long time lay it on a piece of waxed paper with the cut side downward, and fold the paper over it in such a way as to exclude the air.

To clean curtain hooks place them in water in which a little ammonia has been poured, and leave for a little while.

THE TABLE.

Windsor Sandwiches—Cream one-third cup of butter, and add one-half cup each of finely chopped cold boiled ham and cold boiled chicken. Season with salt and paprika. Spread the mixture between thin slices of bread.

Deviled Almonds—Two ounces of blanched and shredded almonds, butter one tablespoonful of chutney, two tablespoonfuls of chopped pickles, one tablespoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, few grains of cayenne. Fry the almonds until browned, using enough butter to prevent burning. Mix the remaining ingredients, pour over the nuts and serve as soon as thoroughly heated. Serve with oysters.

Sole a la Bercy—Skin and bone two large flounders and cut into eight fillets. Put into buttered pan, and sprinkle with salt, pepper, and lemon juice, and add one-fourth cup of white wine. Cover and cook for fifteen minutes. Remove to serving dish, pour over herby sauce, and sprinkle with finely chopped parsley.

Bercy Sauce—Fry one tablespoonful of finely chopped shallot in one tablespoonful of butter five minutes; and two tablespoonfuls of flour, and pour on gradually the liquor left in the pan with enough white stock to make one cup. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter and salt and cayenne to taste.

Spanish Cream—One-quarter box of gelatine or one tablespoonful of granulated gelatine, three cups of milk, whites of three eggs, yolks of three eggs, one-half cup of sugar (scant), one-quarter teaspoonful of salt, one teaspoonful of wine. Scald the milk with the gelatine, add the sugar, pour slowly on the yolks of eggs slightly beaten. Return to double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring constantly; remove from the heat, add the salt, flavoring, and whites of eggs beaten stiff. Turn into individual moulds, first dipped in cold water, and chill.

Serve with cream. You will need more gelatine if large moulds are used.

Sultana Caramels—Two cups of sugar, one-half cup of milk, one-quarter cup of molasses, one-quarter cup of butter, two squares of chocolate, one teaspoonful of vanilla, one-half cup of English walnut or hickory nut meat, cut in pieces, two tablespoonfuls of Sultana raisins. Put the butter into a saucepan; when melted, add the sugar, milk and molasses. Heat to boiling-point, and boil seven minutes. Add the chocolate and stir until the chocolate is melted; then boil seven minutes longer. Remove from the fire, beat until creamy, and add the nuts, raisins, and vanilla, and pour at once and mark in squares. The nut meats and raisins may be omitted.

This is no calamity howl; but wouldn't it be better if the public gave those people to distinctly understand that while they could be as comical as they had the ability to be, along legitimate lines, no suggestive word would be allowed to get by the editor's or manager's desk.

In their eagerness to grasp the elusive star of success, they forget that the effects of their work may be positively damning to millions of other people; that a day of reckoning will also come for them—for Christ knows it has come for the class of people who scandalize little children. May I ask what else the writers of moving picture plays do? Not! Not all of them, but a large per cent.

Of course you can say "evil be to him who evil thinks," but why not eliminate plays that fairly flaunt indecency in one's face? One girl or boy is worth more to the state than all the license money accrued from the "movies." Do we not have enough attention to this fact. Do we surround our growing boys and girls with good influence or are we criminally careless along these lines?

Do we spend too much on the care of criminals, that our very carelessness has helped to make, and not enough on procuring for our young the right sort of surroundings and influence?

Do we forget that an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure?

Strong, indeed, must be the influence of the home to counteract the undesirable outside influence that surrounds your children and mine. The influence that give our young folks false ideas, false impressions of life; that make it almost an impossibility for them to steer their bark on a true course.

This is getting away from how to spend that 75 cents weekly amusement fund. Before ending this, may I suggest that the Civic club do something definite towards providing one theatre that will be fit for our growing children to always safely attend?

Taking up our 75 cents again, if one does not attend the movies this amount can be used for church suppers, lectures, a good book, an occasional buggy ride or a family picnic.

Now don't scoff until you've tried it. You have no idea the pleasure a family can derive from this small sum judiciously expended for this purpose alone.

Of course you're not restricted to 75 cents. If your income will permit make it more—but do not forget that you will not always be young, and that it is a wise plan to save for the day you will be forced to retire. Have an amusement fund, for all work and no play makes any dull, but have it in proportion to your salary.

The Kitchen Cabinet

THE best things are nearest—beneath your nostrils, light in your eyes, flowers at your feet, duties at your hand, the path of God just before you. Then do not grasp at stars, but do life's plain, common work as it comes, certain that daily duties and daily bread are the sweetest things of life.

—Lord Houghton.

TOOTH-SOME DISHES.

If one likes to delight a guest with an unusual salad, and who does not? here is one worth trying: Lay a slice of banana on a crisp nest of lettuce, heap it with banana put through a ricer, and well mixed with lemon juice, sprinkled with chopped pecan meats and serve with a mayonnaise dressing. If one does not care for an oil dressing, there are any number of boiled dressings which are simple to prepare and have the good keeping quality. Equal parts of beaten egg and diluted vinegar cooked in a double boiler, and such seasonings, richness of dream of condiments added when used, is one of the good stand-bys.

Cherry and Date Dessert.—Put a pint of cherry juice in a cup of hot water, the juice of half a lemon and a cup of sugar over the fire. When boiling, add two level tablespoonfuls of gelatine which has been softened in water. Cool and stir, setting the pan in ice water when slightly thickened, wet a mold and put the gelatine mixture in alternate layers with a cup of stoned dates. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Date Torte.—Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff, add the beaten yolks and a cup of sugar, a cup of bread crumbs and a teaspoonful of vanilla and a half cup of chopped nuts. Bake twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with whipped cream.

Quaker Tea Cakes.—Take two cupfuls of rolled oats, one cupful of sugar, two eggs beaten slightly, one-fourth of a cup of butter, a teaspoonful of baking powder and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Drop on a buttered pan an inch apart. Bake in a moderate oven.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am past thirty, but I have two lines between my eyes since I was in my teens. Could I get rid of them partially or wholly? (2) I also have trouble with my complexion. My skin is perfectly clear and smooth, but sometimes I am sallow, other times pink. Why is it? (3) Is it something I eat or something I do. Milk is poison to me and I do not drink coffee, but I drink Postum and I do not think I can get rid of my complexion with me? (4) Do you think drinking at meals is good or bad for the complexion? (5) Will nuts injure my complexion? (6) Could you send me a diet list that I could follow for a trial? ROMA.

(1) Possibly your eyes cause the lines. Sometimes the need of glasses causes one to frown. Suppose you consult an oculist. Also, massage the lines gently with the finger tips, in a rotary motion, twice a day, with a simple cold cream, and try to keep from frowning.

(2) Your complexion may be at fault. Perhaps you do not take out-door exercise regularly, and possibly you eat things that do not agree with you at times. Tea is not good for the complexion. Have you tried milk? It is very good for the health and for the complexion. I should not think canned berries would do any harm, if they were properly put up. If you suspect them at all, better not eat them. Cooking the milk changes its chemical and it ought not to harm you in puddings, etc.

(3) The food should always be well chewed and drinking at meals is apt to cause you to swallow your food half chewed. It is better not to drink much of anything at meals, but to have enough salad and a refreshing food so that liquid to drink is unnecessary at meal time. I am afraid you are drinking too much tea, my friend.

(4) No, they are nourishing, but should be well chewed. (5) I would suggest that you eat plenty of fruits and vegetables at all meals, either raw or cooked, and have a salad at least for each dinner. Eat no fat meats, no pastries or rich gravies and very little candy, if any. Do not lie down or sit down for at least twenty minutes after each meal. If the bowels do not keep open with such a diet, take a dose of Roson salts when necessary. Drink little of anything but water and plenty of that, if it is PURE. Exercise outdoors as much as possible. Fresh air in the lungs is as necessary as fresh food in the stomach.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am fourteen years and nine months old, four feet nine and one-half inches tall, weigh 114 pounds, could you please advise what to work? I am strong. Am I too young to learn dressmaking? If you learn dressmaking, do you get paid when fourteen years old, or must one be sixteen years old before getting paid?

BROWN EYES. You are too young to go out working. I would be better for you to finish your school education before beginning to try to earn money. It would do no harm take a course of dressmaking while you are going to school. A girl who can make her own dresses has a distinct advantage over girls who cannot do that. I do not know the rates of pay, but if you should give your entire time in employment of any kind I should think you would be paid something.

Stop Your Cough
Make this Family Supply of Cough Syrup at Home and Save $2.

This plan makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer an ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 2 1/2 pints of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time.
Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Have a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.
The effect of pinex on the membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in glucosides and other natural healing elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, though never successfully. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.
A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or we will get it for you. If not, send to

Don't Be Misled if You Have Lung Trouble

If you have Lung Trouble, do not be misled by reports of discoveries of specifics to relieve that affection. No specific has as yet been found. Eckman's Alterative, however, is a medicine for throat and lung troubles which has been successfully used in many cases. If you are sick it might be wise for you to investigate its merits and its use may be of lasting benefit to you. Read of this case.

"Gentlemen: Five years ago last August I was taken to St. Francis Hospital to be treated for Bronchitis and congested lungs. After several weeks' treatment I was advised by the doctor to go to a convalescent sanitarium, but could not be admitted because the doctor at the hospital, after a thorough examination, declared my case Lung Trouble, and gave me a certificate to that effect. I showed the certificate to Father Stark, and he advised me to take Eckman's Alterative. I took the Alterative faithfully as directed, and soon found myself free from night sweats and fever, and gradually got better. I have not taken the Alterative for two years, and can truthfully say I am well. I tell better and am stronger than before my sickness."

(Above abbreviated, more on request.)
Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most effective for

THE MARSHAL

The Better Treasure, Etc.

"It is my uncle, Colonel Hampton,"

Harry's voice was explaining.
They would not hear of his going to Carnifax—not for days, not for a month; why should he go at all? Colonel Hampton asked if he were to be only one year or two in Virginia, why trouble to set up housekeeping alone in that big house, when Koonoke House was here and in order, and only too glad to keep him. So Francis for a week or two stayed. And found himself, shortly a notability. Harry Hampton, his boyish ambition for adventure and daring denied every personal outlet, because of that accident in babyhood which had started him in life, nonetheless, lame, and as proud of his salvage from the Austrian bid of prey as if Francis' record had been his own. Much more frankly proud, for he could talk about it, and did.
Alike had told him a great deal, and the episode of the headlong rescue of Prince Louis Napoleon, the capture and imprisonment and final theatrical escape, went like wild-fire, about the countryside, and stirred all the romance of the warm-blooded southerners.
Every house wanted the hero to break bread and under young Harry's proud wing Francis went gladly to meet all these friends of his friend.
As the general had said years ago, his simplicity struck the finest note of sophisticated high breeding; moreover, he had lived with high-bred people more than one country; the aristocrats of Virginia were delighted with his young nobleman, as they thought him—with his charm of manner and his stirring history, with the lines of suavely in his thin face and the broad lock of gray—the badge of that suffering—in his dark hair; with the quaint foreign accent too, and the unexpectedness in the turns of his rapidly increasing English.

It was because of the title of Chevalier, which Alke had given him in speaking to Henry Hampton, and which Henry Hampton used in introducing him to the noblesse of the South, partly because he believed it his, partly because it pleased the childlike French vanity in him. He had no thought of claiming a social position not his own; no thought that a social position might count with these hospitable friends. Names unknown in American history were spoken at the dinner table of those days in Virginia.

"It is the Chevalier Beaupre. Mr.
Clay," Lucy Hampton answered a question from a tall man with a great domed head.
She was placed next him at a dinner at Martin's Brandon, the old home of the Harrisons. "The young man with the band of white in his hair—it is the Chevalier Beaupre—of France. He is staying at Koonoke. And she went to eagerly to give a quick summary of the history of this stranger, whose personality attracted the interests of so distinguished a person. As she talked, Francis, of Kentucky, bending to listen to her sliding speech, watched, under his deep brow, the man across the table.

"It is a good deal of history for a man of twenty-six," Clay considered, and with that his resonant assured voice lifted acrobatic talk of the dinner table. "Chevalier Beaupre!" Francis turned swiftly, and his great dark eyes met the piercing look of the great statesman. "Mals out, Monsieur!" he dropped back into his own tongue at a sudden touch, always brilliant, the silence which fell on the long table. Henry Clay went on in his clear masterful tones. "Miss Hampton tells me that you are of the Bonapartist side of the French politics. That interests me. I should like to get an idea of the strength of that faction in France. You come, I suppose, of a Bonapartist family.
Was your house royalist before the revolution? And in what part of France did your lands lie?"

The twenty odd people, leaders of the Virginia aristocracy bent forward from this side and that of the table to hear the reply. It came easily, promptly, in the deep, clear, young voice, which they had all begun to know.
"But, Monsieur! I have no house.
I am a peasant. My father holds a farm from the Seigneur of Viqueux, in the valley of the Jura. It is all the land we have." The exquisite radiant smile of the child of the cottage of La Clairière, the silence which fell on the glittering dinner table of Brandon, unconscious of the startled eyes staring all one way in that dramatic silence.

Human nature is mostly good enough to ring true to the touch of truth. It is also quick to be kindly when kindness is the lead of greatness. Clay, of Kentucky, was emphatically great. He bowed with a gentle courtesy than common to the brilliant steady face opposite him.
"Sir," he said, "it is a fine thing to have a heroic record than to have family and lands. I took it for granted you had everything, for you seem a darling of the gods. I congratulate you that the realities which men strive for during long lives—greatness of spirit and greatness of action have come to you at twenty-six. May I look forward to some talk with you after dinner on French politics?"

— And Francis, answering eagerly, with the pleasure in pleasing which was part of his magic, did not suspect that he had passed a crisis. Missing by his breath a social shipwreck, which he would not have realized or regarded, the Chevalier Beaupre stood hereafter in Virginia society on his own feet, a peasant born, yet a lion.
People wondered how he was a chevalier, but not even Harry Hampton cared to ask him, and it was a tale which lay too deep in his heart to be told often.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Captain of the Troop.
And now he had left Koonoke, and was living in the great old house of Pietro's land, the old house which had been lived in a hundred years before Pietro's father had bought it, the old house in which grandchildren of Bistro Nye today.

Something in his odd broken English, something in his vivacity and energy, something in the warmth of his heart which the poor souls felt in him none quicker than negroes to feel a heart—fascinated the slaves who fell to his unaccustomed management. He met Henry Clay and the proud aristocrats of Virginia as men and women, and given them the best of himself; he met these thick-lipped, dark-skinned, black people, otherwise, and gave them the same. By the crystal truth in him the first had been vanquished, and it happened not differently with these other human beings. Pietro's misadventured property gave order to his mouth by mouth; Francis, in the saddle most of the time, riding from end to end of the plantation, found his hands full and his work interesting, and his health and strength coming back—though that was a slower progress.

The people who do most are likely to be the people who can do a thing more. Young Henry Hampton, ruled out of the larger part of his natural pleasures by that stern law of nature which had made him lame, appeared to Francis as a man, hardly more deeply. In his devotion to his discovery, his brand from the Austrian burning, his own peculiar friend-all this Harry considered Francis to be—the boy was very much at Car-nifax, and the older man, hardly more than a boy himself, came to know the suffering it meant to a strong and active young animal, to drag a ball and chain. The sort of lad who would have led others at fencing, wrestling, and boxing, was now content to sit he had to sit outside, and with aching heart and muscles tingling to be at work, to watch his friends. He was generous and cheered on the others;
he was reserved and never spoke of himself; people even forgot that he had come to take his lameness for granted, had forgotten that the trial was a fresh one to him. But Francis understood. There were no words spoken between them, but Francis, knowing Francis' kindness toward this boy who had helped him back to life, turned things over in his mind and found a scheme which which seemed to promise pleasure for young Hampton—which seemed besides to be good practice for his own work.

The boy's face, however, was steady, through and beyond all this temporary living—the work of fighting for the Bonapartes.
The one thing which the lad could do was riding. "Henry," Francis spoke, as the two trotted together down a shady lane on the plantation on the way to the far fields where negroes worked in the autumn sunlight.
"what would you think of organizing a mounted troop militia?"

"Well, that's rather a big name for it, Uncle Henry, but it is going like a struck," answered Henry, junior. "We meet again today, and tomorrow I think we shall begin business."
— He approved of it, Colonel Hampton stated.
Harry bowed his head gravely. The colonel went on.
"It is a well-bred and appropriate method of amusement. A gentleman should know something of military affairs. But—the ranking and—ah—arrangements? Such—details are not unlikely, with gentlemen of the first families, as you all are—except one—to crystallize into a later important name the man who has been the leader of this company of very young men will not unlikely be the man thought of as a leader in—ah—affairs of greater moment to come.
May I inquire who is the captain?"

Henry Hampton looked troubled.
"Why, nobody yet, Uncle Henry.
We have not got to that. But, of course, the Chevalier—" Colonel Hampton interrupted him.
"Exactly. I thought so. That is what I wish to avoid. The Chevalier must not be the captain."
The boy caught up the words holly.
"Uncle Henry, he has done it all. We all want him."

"Exactly. But you must not have him. I am surprised at you, Henry.
Do you remember that this man is peasant-born. Do you want to be led into battle by a person whose rank is not above that of our own servants?"

"Let us into battle!" Young Henry laughed shortly. "Led into a corn field is more like it." And then his glance fixed. "Moreover, Uncle Henry, if there were battle in the case, we should all count ourselves lucky to be led by him." "Can not be!" demanded Francis.
"Why not?"

There was a moment's silence and with a painful effort the words came.
"My—misfortune. I am lame."

"A mere French peasant, by his own account. Of course, I have—received him, because of your infatuation for him. And—the young man has qualities. He has been a success really.
I will not deny. He is quite surpris-

Classified Want Ad?

"It is simply impossible to get help in the home, I'm so discouraged that I scarce know where to turn," is what an anxious, over-worked mother said to a friend of hers the other afternoon.

Now IS it so hard to get help? I know of a woman—just plain people who advertised for a house-keeper and she received eleven answers. That's true, and six of them she has since secured positions for, in homes right here in this city.

How did she receive so many answers? By simply writing a human advertisement, saying that a kind home and treatment would be given to the one who could qualify for the position.

This mother has growing children, noisy boys and girls; yet she experienced no trouble in securing help.

In most of the answers this was the answer she got, "because you promised a good home and kind treatment." Where we make a mistake when we want aid in our homes is when we forget to put ourselves in the other woman's place.

Write a detailed advertisement; promise kindness and fairness and you will have your ad answered. Try it and see.
